

PROFIT TAX EXTENDED TO INDIVIDUALS

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES TO ASSESS INDIVIDUALS AS WELL AS CORPORATIONS AND PARTNERSHIPS.

TO YIELD $100,000,000

Will Reach War Profits of Trades Conducted Personally and Will Include Professional Men.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, June 21.—Extension of the excess profit taxes in the war revenue bill to individuals engaged in trade or business as well as corporations and partnerships was decided upon today by the senate committee. From the individual tax an additional $100,000,000 in revenue is expected.

An exemption of $5,000 in assessing the tax will apply to individuals on the same basis as corporations. The individual tax would be additional to the income tax. The object of the tax is to reach war profits of trades conducted personally and not incorporated or in partnership form. The tax, it is expected, will apply also to professional men, such as physicians and dentists.

In levying the excess profit tax upon corporations, having substantial profits during the three year period preceding the war, upon which normal and excess profit calculations are to be based, the committee decided to allow the $5,000 exemption and also an additional exemption of six percent upon capital actually invested and employed.

CRUGER ASKS MAYOR FOR WOODS' REMOVAL

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
New York, June 21.—In an open letter to Mayor Mitchell, made public today, Henry Cruger, father of the murdered girl, asked for the removal of Police Commissioner Woods and reorganization of the police department under a new head.

No word of arrest by the police, it is feared that he has fled from Brooklyn, where word of his flight was received here. Police here believe that Cocchi is the key to the white slave traffic in this city.

FIRE CAUSES A STIR DURING EXERCISES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Milwaukee, June 21.—During the exercises on the college campus yesterday afternoon much excitement was caused by the ringing of the fire bell. The blaze was at the Burdick cabinet factory. Both the local and Milwaukee fire departments responded to the alarm, and by 10 o'clock the fire was under control. The fire was located in the enameling room and did several hundred dollars' damage. It is thought that gasoline, used in cleaning the motor, was ignited by a spark from the motor.

CITY'S DONATIONS TOTAL 3,986 TODAY

RED CROSS CAMPAIGN'S TOTAL
SHOWS GOOD GAIN OVER YESTERDAY DESPITE
ALL REPORTS NOT IN.

IS A RAPID INCREASE

Team Number 2, Lead by M. O. Mouat, Takes Lead in Canvass, With Total of $756.

With several committees to be heard from, Janesville has already subscribed $3,986 or the $14,000 which is this city's portion of the $100,000,000 war fund being raised this week by the American Red Cross. This figure was the total reported at the campaign headquarters in the Commercial Club, and represents but a part of all that has been secured. But two members of the executive committee who are making individual campaigns have brought in their totals, and there are a number of teams, from whom reports of good success have come, but who as yet have not listed definite amounts.

Team number 2, captained by M. O. Mouat, leads with a total of $756; team number 1, headed by J. M. Conner, is second with $510; team number 4, H. S. Hager, is third with $425.50; team number 7, J. P. Hammarlund, reports $280, and team number 3, William McVicar, $243.

Campaign Manager C. S. Nolan has secured a total of $107, and J. Jeffris, another individual solicitor, has secured $700.

OFFERS PERCENTAGE

Responding to the call of her country, Mrs. C. A. Wortham, wife of the owner of the C. A. Wortham store, now exhibiting in the city, has arranged with Mr. Lovejoy and his associates of the Red Cross society, to have the store donate five percent of the gross receipts of three of the big riding devices, the Merry-Go-Round, the Whip and the ever popular Ferris Wheel, on Friday (tomorrow) afternoon and night. The Red Cross will be on the grounds at the foot of Franklin street selling tickets for the rides.

That Janesville is slow in responding to the call despite the great activity of all those connected with the campaign, is shown in a study of the amounts given in other state cities. The figures reported by the various committees were:

Racine	$32,400
Wausau	28,800
Oshkosh	15,000
Brookfield	12,000
Manitowish	11,000
Menominee, Mich.	7,800
Marinette	6,000

Army Leader Said to Have Been Connected With Pro-German Intrigue Expected to Resign.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Bern, Switzerland, June 21.—Both houses of the federal parliament have been summoned for June 26 to elect a successor to A. Hoffman, chief of the political department.

Paris, June 21.—A dispatch to Petit Journal says the Financial Circle asserts that Dr. Hoffman is director or president of several financial establishments closely related with large German banks. It is alleged these concerns informed Dr. Hoffman that their future would be gravely compromised if peace were not signed in the near future.

OTHER RESIGNATIONS

The resignation of General Ulrich, commander of the Swiss army, is considered certain, according to a Geneva dispatch to the Journal. His name has been mentioned in connection with the Grimm-Hoffman affair, and he was among those blamed during a protest meeting at Geneva last night.

Made Apologies.
The state consul of Geneva has presented to the central empire his regrets for the damage done to their consular buildings during the manifestations. The German consul declared he was satisfied.

CITY PLAYGROUNDS BEING PUT IN SHAPE

Will be Ready for Opening on Monday.—Miss Amy Williams' Selected as Fourth Assistant.

Plans for the opening of the city playgrounds are fast being completed by Lester Hemming. The repair work on the plots has been started and will be completed by Saturday so that everything will be in readiness for the opening of the summer.

The selection of the supervisor for the Adams school plot has been made by the playground committee of the board of education. Miss Amy Williams, a former resident of the city, and a graduate of Whitewater normal, will have charge of the work. Miss Williams was a student of playground work while in school and since her graduation has been an instructor of the playgrounds at South Beloit during the school year. Her experience will make her capable of conducting the work this summer. All the directors and Lloyd Raymonds will be in the city Saturday to get acquainted with the work and to hold a meeting to outline the policy for the summer. At this time the plans for the conduct of the work will be carefully outlined.

CHILDREN OF THE CITY LOOKING FORWARD TO THE OPENING OF THE PLAYGROUNDS

The children of the city are looking forward to the opening of the four plots. The early start of this newly organized system has increased the interest. It is also expected that the addition of the university playgrounds will add to the interest throughout the summer. The directors are well versed in the control and practical conduct of the plots and should keep the children busy most of the time. Special stress will be placed on competitive games in addition to folk dancing, story hours and musical classes. The introduction of these new features will mean much to the children and older people of the city.

If the weather continues warm, the swimming beach will soon be open for the use of the public. It is the desire of the playground force to secure a permanent bathhouse for the convenience and safety of the bathers. It will undoubtedly be two weeks before the swimming can start.

St. Paul System Makes Change in the Hours of Its Employees.

Since the Adamson eight hour day law went into effect, many changes have been made in train crews and schedules of the local railroad. At the present time, however, the Northwestern road has made no additions in the number of crews. The reason for their not putting on more men is due to the shortage of labor at the present time.

An unusual feature of the day was a joint meeting of Slavs and Czechs with representatives of the Latin races for the purpose of common action. The newspapers believe that difficulties between the Poles and the government will be overcome.

TO BE IN CHARGE OF FOOD CONSERVATION

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford University, Cal., has been placed in charge of the food conservation section of the food administration under Herbert Hoover. He has studied in France, Munich and other European cities, was formerly president of the American Academy of Medicine and dean of the Stanford medical school.

One hundred million dollars is a small amount when to do little except the very life of the nation depends upon it. Military success can never come unless the organization of the medical forces is sufficient to meet the demands made upon it by the horrible deprivations of war. Failure to meet these demands means failure of troops, and in the end world domination by a power whose idea of national existence is based on the theory that might makes right.

Here are some of the things we have to fight: On January 31, in substitution of Germany's adopted policy of sinking any and all vessels, the chancellor declared, "When the most ruthless methods are considered the best calculated to lead us to victory and a swift victory, they must be employed."

And the Kaiser: "Looking at myself as the instrument of the Lord, regardless of the views and opinions of the hour, I go on my way."

And this from the German War Code: "Bribery of enemies' subjects, acceptance of offers of treachery, uncontented and elements in the population, support of pretenders and the like, are permissible; indeed international law is in no way opposed to the exploitation of crimes of third parties" despite the fact that The Hague peace conference declined to "add to the authority of a practice so repulsive by legislating upon it."

Crushing down a hostile country by requisitions, etc., with "no limits except those of the exhaustion, impoverishment, and devastation of the country" is defined as particularly desirable in the military oratorical of the Prussian autocrats.

And the words of Friedrich von Bernhardi, a German general and an expert on military matters: "The Russian military caste. Might is at once the supreme right, and the dispute as to what is right is decided by the arbitrament of war."

Our people must learn to presume that a weak nation is to have the same right to live as a powerful and vigorous nation.

"Our people must learn to feel that the maintenance of peace never can or may be the goal of a policy."

Against such a national policy, we have that of America, summed up for all time in the words of Abraham Lincoln: "With malice toward none, with charity for all, with firmness in the right as God gives us to see the right, let us frank come the work we are in—to bind up another's wounds, to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and orphan, to do all which may achieve peace between us just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations."

It is for the support of that doctrine that the Red Cross makes its appeal to the citizens of Janesville to contribute their quota of $14,000.

ONE BILLION NEEDED TO BUILD AEROPLANES AND SUPPLY AVIATORS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, June 21.—A billion dollars probably would be required to put 100,000 American aeroplanes and 10,000 to 20,000 men in the air, Alexander R. Hawley, president of the Aero Club of America told a sub-committee of the house military affairs committee, when he testified before the committee more toward ending the war than a million additional soldiers. He endorsed the bill to establish a separate department of aeronautics. While the needs of the hundred thousand aeroplanes when peace is restored could be utilized for commercial purposes, he said. He predicted the day of trans-Atlantic air lines was at hand.

SUFFRAGE BANNERS AGAIN TORN DOWN

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Washington, June 21.—The persistence of suffrage sentinels at the White House in hoisting banners bearing inscriptions interpreted as "treasonable" culminated in anti-suffrage demonstrations there today when a crowd of nearly one thousand persons tore down the banners for the second time.

The crowd's victory was short-lived however, for in ten minutes two more banners had been obtained from the suffrage headquarters nearby. Police notified passers-by to let the banners alone.

The ever present movie man was early on the job awaiting the opportunity to make "new films." He was amply rewarded, and when the demonstration was at its height, men who had torn the banners advanced about in front of the clicking camera, waving the tattered scraps, while the crowd roared and cheered.

Governor Philipson's veto of the Burnett bill to permit exchange of pardoned criminals had been changed of persisting in newspapers for railroad mileage was sustained in the assembly, 72 to 3.

The Whitely bill giving the attorney general's office greater power in prosecution and investigation of misdemeanors went through the house without opposition. The assembly 32 to 34 concurred in the Skogmo resolution creating joint legislative committee to conduct an investigation of the branding and marketing of farm products.

The proposed constitutional amendment changing the term of office of county chancellors from two to four years was advanced as was the bill compelling children attending continuation schools to put in eight hours a week instead of five hours, and ten months instead of eight.

The Everett bill increasing reciprocal insurance tax was passed. The senate concurred in the Everett amendment to the Baxter cost tax law by levying one-half a cent on soft and two cents a ton on hard coal passing over docks in this state. The Bray bill to create a state excise commission to enforce the liquor laws was killed by a vote of four to four.

The Wilcox bill conferring upon the state conservation commission power to regulate taking of fish and game was killed sixteen to eleven.

BOYS HAVE CHANCE TO AID COUNTRY IN SUGAR BEET FIELDS

Summer Camp Plan is Presented to Boy Scouts by Director Woolf of the Sugar Company.

If the tentative plans outlined for the Boy Scouts at the general meeting last evening at the Y. M. C. A. work out according to schedule, that organization will add its bit in increasing the productivity of the country rather than following out the mere play idea which usually prevails for boys in vacation time.

W. W. Woolf, agricultural director of the Rock County Sugar company, addressed the boys in a patriotic tone, urging them to help the country in every way possible. As a specific instance of a place where they could assist, he explained the boys' camps which he will establish provided the scouts agree, in the beet fields of this season. Here the boys may work, earn from a dollar to two and a half, above their expenses, and at the same time be doing their patriotic duty by overcoming in a measure the shortage of labor which stares the sugar producers in the face. A large number of scouts have been purchased by the sugar company for these camps, and the boys would be under the direct supervision of Mr. Woolf, a graduate of the university, and a man thoroughly capable to conduct a boys' camp. The work has been arranged so that the boys can work by pieces, receiving so much for each row of beets cured for in this way they are not compelled to put in too long hours, but can gauge their labor according to their ability and capacity.

Twelve hundred went out for a trial in the beet fields, and if they find the work to their liking, it is probable that a camp will soon be established. Though Mr. Woolf made his proposition directly to the scouts, it is his hope that all boys will feel free to take advantage of the positions and camp life offered. A large number of workers are needed on the beet farms, and all boys who have not already secured positions are urged to aid the country and earn good pay by this work in the open air. The sugar company has increased drain on the pocketbooks of the citizens especially interested in the scout movement, the scout council last night decided to postpone indefinitely the employment of a permanent scout director who would devote his entire time to organizing and supervising scout activities. It was further decided that no permanent scout camp would be held this year, but each of the troops may camp independently under the direction of their individual scoutmasters, as they may see fit.

CLAIMS COP HIT HIM; COURT LAUDS THE COP

Judge Maxfield Informs Traveling Man He Was Lucky It Was Not Worse, If Officer Really Did It.

"If Tom Morrissey gave you that black eye, mugged up your mouth like it is and cut you on the forehead," Judge Maxfield told Homer Bowlin, a traveling man, "he must have had some pretty good reason."
And to Bob Courtney, local, he again lauded the night captain: "After an officer has been on the force for twenty years, there's not much danger in his making a mistake in an intoxicated man."
Bowlin, with a facial battering worse than a Namur for after the latter's 42-counting cannon he passed through Belgium, told the court he received his optical region hies of green and blue and purple from the arresting officer. He showed credentials and claimed to be a representative of the American Medical association. He was arrested for intoxication, after physicians in the Hayes and Jackson blocks became suspicious of his entering the offices of medical men. He was fined ten dollars or fifteen days.

Courtney was charged with drunkenness and also being a vag. Officer Morrissey arrested him last night for insulting women, although in court the prisoner denied that he had insulted any of the fair sex. He demanded an examination. The court found him guilty and sent him to jail with a flat sentence of thirty days.
Otto Lenz and Erick Johnson were charged with second offense drunkenness and demanded examinations. They were set for a week from today with bail of $100 each.
Jack Zimmerman, a farm hand, was handed a five dollar fine, or seven days. John Powers went to jail for a bit of ten days and in addition received a fine of $25, which if not paid will mean ninety days additional for John.

COMMISSION PROCEEDINGS

Bills for labor and material allowed. The monthly and the annual report of City Treasurer George W. Muenchow were received and ordered filed.

City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund was directed to draw an order for $75 on the city treasury in favor of the Memorial day fund.

The having report of Chief Henry C. Klein of the fire department was received. It was the same as published in the Gazette some time ago. Reports of the plumbing inspector and of the fire dental clinic were received and ordered filed.

The bond of the Gazette Printing company, to do the city's printing, was accepted. Fifty thousand dollars bonds each from the four banks of the city, for the handling of the municipality's finances for the next year, were accepted. The banks gave the city 2 per cent interest.

Petitions for cilling were accepted, filed and the work ordered on the following streets:
West Bluff to Ravine.
Pease Court, Bluff to Cornelia.
Holmes, Lynn to Center avenue.

Superintendent of Streets P. J. Goodman reported to the commission that the laying of cement curbs and gutters ordered by the city was at a standstill, and intimated that the contractor to whom the work for the year was let was not in the work. It was determined to extend all efforts to have this work speeded up.

A report of the board of public works listed a number of streets where a number of property owners ordered the curbs and gutters laid, had failed to do so. The commission then ordered the board to proceed with the work, furnish all materials required for the improvement and tax costs against the property. Following is the list of the streets named by the board where a large number of property owners ordered the curbs and gutters laid:
Mineral Point avenue, Chatham to Pine.

Chatham, Elizabeth to Highland avenue.
Pearl, Mineral Point to Washington.
Holmes, River to Center.
North High to Washington.
Ravine, High to Center.
Union, River to Jackson.
Hickory, Fourth avenue to Fremont.

Contract for this work was let to G. B. Canham and will be done at the following figures:
Combined Gutter and Curb, per foot $2
Gutter Flag 1.25
Combined Gutter and Curb, per foot 1.25
Superintendent of Streets Goodman reported that the portion of Division street upon which asphalt was laid three years ago last fall was in a bad condition and had started to ravel. He advised the use of a sealing coat of street oil. It was ordered.

Mr. Goodman also reported that Cornelia street, between Division and Hyatt, was being repaired with cinders.
The ordering in of close to half a mile of standard cement walks was deferred until next week.
Saddles between city officials and property owners that some walks would be laid this spring have failed to materialize to fact. The places where these are to be laid, although ordered in outlying districts, are of sufficient importance that the work should be done at once, city officials say.

City Clerk Hammarlund was ordered to secure prices and to purchase four sanitary drinking fountains. Two are to be placed in court house park, one is to be put in Riverview park, and the fourth is to replace the one at the east end of Milwaukee street bridge, this being broken beyond repair.

MISS LILLIAN SUMMERFELD WEDS THOMAS R. ANDERSON

Announcement has just been made of the marriage of Thomas R. Anderson of Gallup, New Mexico, and Lillian E. Summerfeld of Janesville. They were quietly married Saturday evening at eight o'clock at the English Lutheran parsonage by Rev. Muller. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Glen Flagler of Whitewater.

The groom attended Janesville high school and eight years ago went west, where he was graduated from a four years' apprenticeship as a skilled mechanic at Winslow, Arizona. The following year he finished special apprentice course at Richmond, California. For the past two years he has been foreman of the roundhouse at Gallup, New Mexico, which will be their future home.

The bride is a graduate of Milton high school, class of 1911. She also attended teachers' training school and was well known for her musical ability. After a two week visit to relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will leave for New Mexico, stopping at Chicago, Kansas City and other places of interest on the way.

SECOND CAMPS FOR TRAINING OFFICERS

Wisconsin Men—Go to Ft. Logan H. Root, Arkansas—Camp Starts Sept. 27.

The United States government, in announcing its plans for the second officers' training camp, makes a special appeal to men of mature age. The war department strongly desires men who, by virtue of their ripe judgment and that force of character which comes with years, are able to lead others.

Men of 31 and over, and up to 44 years of age, are particularly wanted. Professional men—men now holding responsible positions in business, executive and men of special military training up to 50 years. The military officials point out further that the more mature men, who are ready to serve their country at war, should consider it a solemn duty to apply for positions as officers rather than to be content, through modesty, with a place in the ranks.

Under the charge of the local officers' recruiting headquarters of the Military Training Camps association, emphasizes the words of the Washington office. "Since the best military service is for every man to do what he is particularly fitted for, men of maturity should consider that they are fulfilling their plain duty by qualifying as officers. It is the government's desire to have the most efficient men serving as commanders."

This is the final call for older men from civil life, who have a fund of real, personal experience. Young men can rise from the ranks. The training camp is primarily for those over 31 years of age.

The war department makes it very clear that the men who secure commissions at this last camp, have taken their places as leaders of the first 500,000, all promotions will be from the rank and file.

In brief, the following are the qualifications for admission to the new training camps:
An intelligent, trained mind. Executive business ability. Previous military training is an asset—but not necessary. The maximum age limit is fifty years; the minimum, twenty years, nine months. The average of civilian life is preferred. Preference will be given to those over 31 years of age, other things being equal.

The government will pay civilians in training at the rate of $100 per month, and will also furnish transportation, subsistence, and uniform. Men who receive commissions will be paid, while in active service, at the same rate as regular army officers. Second Lieutenant $1,700
First Lieutenant 2,000
Captain 2,500
Lieutenant-colonel 4,000

Immediate Response Necessary.
Applications for the second training camp will be received between June 15th and July 15th at the local officers' recruiting headquarters. The application will be considered after July 15th. Upon the termination of this period, army examiners will visit various points and accept applications. The applicant selected for personal and physical examination will be notified to appear before the regular army officer in person, at a convenient point, for final interview and acceptance. Leadership, and qualifications in general.

The obligation is "enlistment for a period of three months" only. Applicants will agree to accept, at the end of the training, such commission in the army of the United States as may be tendered by the secretary of war. The enlistment, however, is only to service in the training camp only.

Sixteen Camps.
The training camps are to be held in the south, with locations as follows:
For Benjamin Harrison, Ind. (3 camps). For division area IV (Pennsylvania congressional districts not numbered are to be held in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia). For Logan H. Root, Ark. (2 camps) or other place to be designated. For divisional area X (Wisconsin and Michigan) and divisional area XII (Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas). For Springs, Texas. (2 camps). For divisional area XI (Illinois) and divisional area XIV (Texas, Arizona, New Mexico and Oklahoma). For Fort Riley, Kansas. (2 camps). For divisional area XIII (Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska and Iowa) and divisional area XIV (Kansas, Missouri and Colorado).

ARREST YOUTHFUL TRAMP; BIG SUPPLY OF TOBACCO IS FOUND ON HIS PERSON

A seventeen-year-old tramp was arrested this morning by Patrolman Lorenzo Cain. When brought to the station, he broke down a big supply of smoking and chewing tobacco, several unbroken sacks of the former, and a number of flat tins of "cud." He claimed his home is in Ohio. His appearances were unbecoming on the road for some time. Chief of Police Champion went over industrial school runaway descriptions. In the hope of the prisoner being an escaped youth from the Western Workhouse. None was found, however, that tallied with the youth. He was placed in the lockup to await further developments.

WELL KNOWN REAL ESTATE MEN RETURN TO JANESVILLE

Messrs. Goodrich and Goodrich of Peoria, who will be remembered by local people, are spending some time in Janesville in the interests of the Pleasant View addition, which was opened by Bunn and Son some years ago and later was taken under the active management of Goodrich and Goodrich. The elder Mr. Bunn passed away recently at his home in Peoria, and much of his business is now being cared for by Goodrich and Goodrich.

DO YOUR BIT for the Red Cross--the bigger the bit the better--but every little bit helps, no matter how small.

EDGERTON PASSES THE $4,000 MARK

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Edgerton, June 21.—Edgerton Red Cross workers have exceeded their $4,000 mark and have collected in all $4,100. This is $100 more than the allotment to this locality. The committee in charge are well pleased with the manner in which the citizens have responded to this worthy cause. They are still in the field and contributions are still being received.
An unusually large attendance was on hand last evening for the band concert. The concert was pleasing and well rendered.

Quite a number of Edgerton people are attending the carnival that is being held at Janesville this week. The Norwegian Lutheran church Sunday school will hold their annual picnic on Friday of this week. Automobiles will be provided for transportation and all those desiring to attend should be at the church promptly at nine o'clock in the morning.

Mrs. E. A. Finch of Cincinnati, Ohio, is a guest at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. A. Jenson.

Mrs. L. Wilcox of Janesville, was a guest yesterday at the home of Miss Helen Coon.

The Y. M. C. A. will hold a business meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Saunders on Friday afternoon at three o'clock. All members are urged to be present as urgent business will be transacted.

Miss Walda Brandt and Mr. Lang will of Beloit, were united in marriage at Beloit yesterday. Miss Brandt is a sister of Rev. Brandt and although she has been in Edgerton a short time, she has made many friends in the city. Mr. Lang will be conducting a jewelry store in Beloit and is favorably known among his business associates. They will make their future home at Beloit. Among those from Edgerton who attended the wedding were Mrs. J. W. Coon and daughters, Mrs. Mawhinney and Mrs. T. Lyon.

Mrs. Bell Stoddard and children and Mrs. Alfred Thompson of Stoughton, were visitors at the home of the latter's mother, Mrs. Greenwood, yesterday.

All persons who have signed for Red Cross membership and have not paid their dues, please call at the Tobacco Exchange Bank and pay same. Signed, Louise J. Pearce, ex Sec.

POULTRY and GARDEN

LETTERS ADDRESSED TO THE DEPARTMENT SHOULD ENCLOSE 2 STAMPS IF REPLY OTHER THAN THROUGH THESE COLUMNS IS DESIRED

Local junior recruits to Wisconsin, fast growing army of poultry, will be scheduled for inspection by professional poultrymen beginning this week. About 750 members in the thirty-odd junior poultry clubs in the state, who have at least 25 pure bred high producing fowls on hand with which to help increase the food supply, will line up for inspection and make reports on project work.

H. B. Hayes, poultry department, University of Wisconsin, will take care of the inspection work for the boys club, many of which are allied with the local organizations. Hayes, agricultural club work of Wisconsin, directed by T. L. Beswick, extension service, college of agriculture.

Plans which will be visited during the next few weeks by Mr. Hayes include those organized by local leaders at Green Lake, Princeton, Marquette, Cornish, Chippewa Falls, Holcombe, Cornish, Frederic, Loyal, Marshfield, Plymouth, Spooner, Waterville, Kenosha, Marshall, Oshkosh, Oconto, Harland, and Oconomowoc.

The first reports of projects carried on by the boys will take up on chicken raising, to include a twelve weeks' record of cost, percentage and quality of eggs, and a similar record of egg production projects will be started immediately after the first reports are in.

House building suggestions, demonstrations on culling out poor layers, and canning fowls for market, will be some of the things handled at the training inspection of clubs.

"Don't send dirty eggs to market and don't wash them either." This advice sounds contradictory at the first glance—but egg dealers and egg producers have an explanation to make which makes things smooth again. They say: "Eggs have a certain protective covering—a sort of film which, if washed away, exposes the contents of the shell more readily to outside influences."

To wash the eggs before taking them to market is bad business. It should be stopped, and only such eggs sent to market as come from the nests in a naturally clean condition. The extra work to make them presentable.

"This means that all dirty eggs produced in the home poultry plant should be used at home—and, if possible, they should neither be taken to market dirty nor washed, for the reason given."

To get a good general average of clean eggs is not a hard matter, Wisconsin poultrymen state. This means mainly keeping plenty of nests to accommodate the laying hens, and to keep the chickens or sitting hens do not roost in the nests at night. These precautions in addition to a deep litter of clean material on the floor, frequently, will help a sanitary egg supply.

THE RED CROSS.

(By Louise F. Brand.)
I am the great warm throbbing heart
Of all humanity,
I am its kindly hands,
Its tender voice,
Its swift-shod feet.
That hasten where the cry
Of those who bravely suffer
Tells their need.
I am your envoy,
Doing in your stead
The things you long to do
Yet lack time and alone,
Your messenger of hope and cheer,
Of very life itself.
To those who stand
In deadly peril
And to those who fall
Defending you and all that you hold dear.

Where battles rage
And bloody war exacts its toll
Of human life,
I stand as Love From Home,
A grateful people's tribute
And acknowledgment
Of debt that never can be paid
To those who give their all
When they face death that a Great Cause may live;
Yes, who give more,
For those who give themselves
Of those who love them,
And the wounds of heroes on the battlefields
Are not the only wounds
That bleed in war.

You, who sit in safety
And in peace, dear bought
By those who fight upon the firing line
That you may work at home?
Shall you give service
Less than is your best,
Refuse to associate
The things you hold
Less precious far than life—
Your all, if needs must be,
To strengthen those who are your strength and stay
In this dark hour?
O, will you stay your hand
When staying yours binds mine
And sends me forth inadequate
To do your work?

Nay, that I'll not believe,
A noble mission you have given me
And you will arm me with the power
To do your work.
I am the finest impulse of your soul
The inspiration of the Brotherhood of Man.

former resident of Janesville and had her newspaper training in this city on the Recorder and the Gazette. After a brilliant career on the Milwaukee Sentinel she has given her life work up to the Red Cross cause. She writes and appeals to every resident of Janesville and Rock county and her appeal should not go unheeded.
The campaign is on for Red Cross subscriptions and each one should not be backward in doing their share.
Fight or pay is the slogan, and those who can not fight should pay. Be liberal! Help swell the grand total and bring the figures up to striking distance of the needed sum that is expected from the community.

NATURAL RESULTS.

This war has brought about many various conditions that the American people have not yet become accustomed to. Leslie's Weekly prints an article which has to do with the advertising proposition, which is of interest generally and shows the general spirit of the American people in this time of stress.
Anxiety was felt on our entrance into the war as to its effect on business and advertising. Fear of a halt in prosperity resulted in a hesitancy throughout the country, a feeling which has been of short duration. It is interesting to note how the fears of men work the same everywhere.
In England, as Mr. P. G. A. Smith points out in his book, "The Fear and Nervousness of the Public Brought Business almost to a standstill in the first few weeks of the war. The more courageous firms went right on advertising as if there were no war, while some cancelled contracts. Then,
public-spirited men started the cry,
"Business as Usual." In a short time the country responded so splendidly that business became the normal thing. The American people, however, are now printing all the advertising they can carry, all lines of business boom, the people have more money to spend than ever before, and firms that had faith in the future are enjoying record prosperity. The experience of Canada is even more valuable for the United States because of similarity of conditions. Canadian business, according to P. L. Blanchard, of the Canadian Press, was downcast by the suddenness of the war's outbreak, but in a splendid reaction the manufacturing industry, in 1916, showed an increase of 43 per cent over the preceding year. Timid advertisers, who cur down their advertising at the start, have since realized the truth of the warning that given that for every dollar cut from their advertising appropriation they would have to spend three to regain their former position. A period of greater prosperity than ever lies before the United States. We shall need to economize in foods, not because of scarcity for ourselves, but in order to increase the surplus for Europe. If the experience of England and Canada counts for anything, every line of trade will be good. There will be work for all, a bigger volume of business than ever before, and the American habit of spending freely will keep more money in circulation than before the war started."

SMALL LOT BUYING.
A recent purchaser of a bag of po-atoes for which he paid $5.75, found inside a note from the man who grew the same, saying that he received only $2.25 for them. Incidents like this set the helpless consumer to thinking.

The public is ground in between a set of adverse conditions, many of which can not be helped save possibly by government interference.
Meanwhile part of the trouble is the outgrowth of popular habits, and might be remedied.

For one thing, the consuming public has got into the habit of buying foods like potatoes in very small lots. It costs about as much to cart a peck of potatoes to a man's door as to take several barrels. Consequently the cost of all these little separate deliveries is added together.

As a consequence of hand to mouth purchasing, the grocer must do hand to mouth cravering. He must be able to get on any day a sufficient supply to meet the little demands of a hundred different families. This makes necessary an elaborate system of delivery by some wholesaler.

Other middlemen make a specialty of storing, holding and trading these potatoes, and still others make a specialty of buying them from the producer. For each pair of hands of this devious journey to the consumer, a profit and costly charges are added.
Formerly most people used to store potatoes and other vegetables in their basements, and they had cellars in which these foods would keep.
Now in the cities millions of people live in flats without storage facilities. All through the North, houses are heated with furnaces that spoil the basements, for no one would use way containers could buy a season's supply and have some place for storage where vegetables would keep, they would save many charges and be independent of speculators as their fathers were before them.

After the newspapers had given to the Liberty bond and registration campaigns, unlimited space that has cost them millions of dollars, the government then plans to proceed to tax the advertising that pays revenue.

After denouncing the rich for not wishing to pay thousands in war taxes which won't come back to them, many men refused to buy even a $50 Liberty bond which can be turned into cash at any time.

The fact that a man's father shouldered a musket and fought for his country, does not prove that his descendants will have bought a Liberty bond that draws 3 1/2 per cent.

Not all the graduates make any great showing with their heads, but no one questions their ability with their hands as shown at the commencement dance.

All the President of the United States has to do in war times is to perform the tasks usually taken care of by the members of his cabinet,
Congress, and all the departments.

The exodus to the summer resorts has begun, and the baggage men are struggling with those small, portable boxes commonly known as trunks.

There is one sure way to get a degree for literary achievement, and that is to hand over some cold cash to a hard up college.

Among the distressing deficiencies in the equipment of the United States troops is the lack of baseballs, bats, mitts, and bases.

It seems highly appropriate that now the government should proceed to take the slackers by the slack of their trousers.

The government is not going to have any labor dictator, as the walking delegates will tell us what we have to do.

It is perhaps natural that King Constantine should have found the throne of Greece quite slippery.

DECEPTION

Oh, marriage is a lottery
That either makes or mars;
It likewise is a potter's,
To judge from family jars.

Mrs. Humphrey Dinkers opened her great turquoise eyes, reached resolutely out of bed and pulled her husband back by the tail of his pajamas. A tear was running down her nose, but her chin was firm.
"Humphrey," she said, "this mystery must be cleared up. I cannot go on any longer with this dreadful doubt. In all the eighteen years of our married life, you have kept nothing from me, nothing—until now."

Fier husband started fearfully and nervously tried to scratch the middle of his back with the toes of his left foot.
"Why, nonsense," he pook hoo'd.
"Why—why—why—why—"
"Humphrey," she continued firmly,
"each night for the past three weeks you have gone up on the roof after you believed me asleep, returning to bed ten minutes later. A dozen times I have made thorough searches of the roof, without finding a single clue. You were just about to go up there now. I can bear it no longer."

Humphrey Dinkers gulped a great gulp.
"Come, come," he said huskily, "rather than jeopardize our perfect union, I will make a clean breast of it. I have pawned my gold watch, temporarily, and this dollar watch makes so much noise when I wind it that I have been taking it up on the roof to wind it for fear that you might ask embarrassing questions."

Gladly, she forgave him, and with a snaffle of relief he climbed back into bed.

Extravagant.

A certain man who returned to London from South Africa a multimillionaire after five years' money making invited a friend to visit his mansion in Park lane. The friend was expatiating to other friends upon the glories of the establishment—the marble halls,
the Turkish carpets, the gold plate.
"And, my boy," he said, "he's got a mint of money. Why, he's got a Rubens, a Vandyke and a Landseer."
"Extravagant bouncer!" said one listener. "What does he want three cars for?"

SMASH COAL PRICES
SAYS DEFENSE BOARD

INADEQUATE SUPPLY AND EXOR-BITANT PRICES CAUSE SERI-OUS PROBLEM SAYS
STATE COUNCIL.

ASK FEDERAL CONTROL

Urges National Defense Board to Insist Upon Government Control of Mines and Process of Distribution.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Madison, Wis., June 21.—After a hearing at which coal dealers were placed under oath and asked to explain the details of their business, the state council of defense today adopted a resolution urging the president to insist upon government control of the mines of the United States until prices go down and the supply is increased.

That the supply is wholly inadequate to take care of the demands of consumers and that prices are abnormally high, was the conclusion of the members of the council. The resolution which suggests the immediate assumption of control by the government follows:

"Supply Low, Prices Exorbitant." Whereas, investigation reveals that the coal situation in this state is threatened with an entire inadequate available supply of coal for the coming winter, and with prices even more exorbitant than those presently charged for this necessity; and

Whereas, investigation and authentic data conclusively establish that neither adequacy of supply nor abnormally high prices are the result of a resulting from a lack of the existence of the undistributed and unmined product, but, on the contrary conclusively establish that both are due essentially to a failure of production and proper distribution, under the prevailing plan of control, operation, and manipulation; and

Whereas, proper control of the price of this commodity to the consumer will not of itself avert the crisis that menaces the people, the available supply throughout the state must be augmented, intensified production and proper distribution must be combined with control of prices if this crisis is to be averted.
Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Wisconsin state council of defense, that the council hereby respectfully recommend to and urge upon the president of the United States and the congress the immediate assumption of control by the United States government over coal mines in the United States and the operation of these mines by the federal government pursuant to such plan as is necessary to assure an adequate supply of coal, and to perfect arrangements for the proper distribution thereof at reasonable prices, allowing to the owners of the mines
a reasonable return for the coal mined and for the use of equipment and facilities."

The testimony of the coal dealers, who were examined by attorney General Walter C. Owen, and later questioned by members of the council, did not agree on all points. For instance, it was generally agreed that the demand in Madison expected a gross profit of 3 1/2 a ton.

Divergence on Testimony.
On the question of a combination to fix prices, the testimony of the dealers was divided. One dealer testified that the Madison dealers held meetings at which the price paid for coal was discussed, but insisted that
the selling price was never raised.
Another dealer testified that the dealers never held meetings, but said that occasionally one dealer would drop into the office of another. This dealer insisted that the price paid for coal never was discussed as he said it would be against the ethics of the profession to ask a competitor how much he paid for his coal.

It was brought out by the questioning of the attorney general and admitted
by at least one dealer that there was no competition in the retail coal business in Madison.

Every dealer testified that he would
be unable to contract for the delivery
of coal under the present conditions
and said that he had placed orders
weeks ago with no assurance that they would be filled.

On the question of the combination to fix prices, the testimony of the dealers was divided. One dealer testified that the Madison dealers held meetings at which the price paid for coal was discussed, but insisted that
the selling price was never raised.
Another dealer testified that the
dealers never held meetings, but said that occasionally one
dealer would drop into the office of another. This dealer insisted that the price paid for coal never was discussed as he said it would be against the ethics of the profession to ask a competitor how much he paid for his coal.

It was brought out by the questioning of the attorney general and admitted
by at least one dealer that there was
no competition in the retail coal business in Madison.

Every dealer testified that he would
be unable to contract for the delivery
of coal under the present conditions
and said that he had placed orders
weeks ago with no assurance that they would be filled.

HAPPY THOUGHT.
It's easy to say Things are going right when Things are Coming your way.

Worse Yet.
Some always come too early or too late.

When asked around and while of

The likes of these, and there are always some
Who never seem to know the time to come,
Yet worse are those who stay and never know,
Or never seem to know, the time to go!

The Little Ones.
Whoever goes along the way and views with cold, unfeeling eye the little children at their play, is called a pretty sour old guy; and he is hated by the maws and made the butt of knocks and sneers who seldom has the good to please and pat the darling little dears. We love the babe, we love the tot, our tender heart they oft enmesh, yet of them all alas, a lot are very dip and very fresh! It is a treat to see their sport and all their little fancies note and yet it's nothing of the sort when they contrive to get your goat.

Many a mother does not fuss or at times it seems to us they're really somewhat in the way; he is indeed a

Evansville News
Evansville, June 21.—The military ball given by the Woman's Relief Corps at the new canning factory plant was a huge success in every detail. Around seven hundred (figures were sold with dance and spectators) —and according to latest reports the corps will probably clear over $200.
The Bird orchestra of Beaver Dam furnished the music. The orchestra is composed of five sisters and they are all artists, for the music they rendered was truly excellent and was a delight and inspiration alike to the listeners.

Red Cross Tour.
The Red Cross automobile drive

GOOD THING FOR JOE
IT HAPPENED IN BELOIT

Judge Clark of Beloit had to give a lesson in geography when Joe Fisher of Cleveland, N. Y., threatened the bar of justice on an intoxication charge.

"Be easy on me, judge," prayed the prisoner. "I declare, your honor, this is the first time I have ever been in court here in Janesville."

"Janesville? This is not Janesville," the judge explained.

"The enlightened Joe drew a sentence of fifteen days. Had Joe appeared before Judge Maxwell, however, and told him he thought this was Beloit, the local magistrate might have added seventy-five more days to his term."

A want ad will rent that house.

BATTLEFIELD SLANG
IS A STEM-WINDER;
LAMP THE CONNECTED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

With the British armies in the field, the Canadians think they are some bears when it comes to slang, but the British Tommy isn't so sure himself when he sets his pen to working along slangological lines.

What is patter than "Emma-Gee" for a machine gun, for instance? Or "O-Pip" for an observation post? One must admit that there's some class in these terms and while you've got your goggles on this column take it from me that there's more pep of the same mustardy standard where this comes from. A "whizzbang" is a shell of such high velocity that its whizz and its bang are almost simultaneous. A "dud" is a shell which fails to explode. A bum handout is a "dud" meal and a glint with a bone head is a "dud" bo. The tip you get on the dilly that was backed off the board by the other nags on the back stretch was a "dud," and the piece of iron that he and another station handed you was a "dud" smoke.

A trench-mortar is a "Joe-Emma" and the big black ball of high explosive the Germans reply with is a "pin-pudding" or an "Archibald" while the German shell which bursts with a fuzzy yellow puff of smoke is a "Tooby." Tommy a German is a "Fritz" and "Fritz" he is to the Canadians. The Scotch call him an "Allyman" (probably after the French "Allemand"), but he is nobody to the Irish. A "brass-hat," perhaps because of the gold braid on his cap, and Tommy's own headgear, the steel helmet he must wear inside the shell zone is a "tin hat."

Another name given the staff officers is the "lilies," supposedly on the theory that they coil not.

"Going to Belgium" and "going to Belgium" you can just bet you last night of spontulix is a "little bit of all right." A "Blighty" is a small wound which invalids you home. A serious wound is not "Blighty" for the very simple reason that it puts a crimp in your traveling calendar and gives you billets in a front sick-bay. If the wound is very bad, so bad that stentimens are necessary before you are operated, you will go to "Resurrection Ward."

"Ack-Drumma" is morning. "Pip-Emma" is afternoon. And night is no infrequently called "Sewer," which is one way to pronounce the French word "soir." When a thing is all gone it's "na-poo"—another assault and battery, with mayhem, on the Frenchais.

A group of mobile batteries, which turn the razzle-dazzle on Fritz or Jerry or Allyman, first at one part of the line then at another is called a "traveling circus." A battle, a raid, or any operation against the enemy of a similar nature, is a "show." A "dud show" means that the stunt did not "come off" in plain English.

When Tommy says "Fritz got his wind up" he means he suffered an attack of trapped pedal extremities.

The guns of largest calibre are "Grandpas." The next larger are "Grandmas." Of course "Daddy" is next and "Mother" next, and "Uncle." "Auntie" and the "kids" follow, down the scale plum to "Emma-Gee." The little bits of names are Harry, Sally, Polly, Mamie, Little Liz, and such, just as the gunner's fancy happens to strike.

The matrimonial tie often turns out to be a noose.

PROVIDE REGULATION OF STORAGE PLANTS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., June 21.—Cold storage products in Wisconsin will be subjected to regulation after Sept. 1, 1917, under the provisions of the new bill, which has just been signed by Governor Philipp. The enforcement of the law is placed with the state dairy and food department.

Storage operators must secure a license from the state which in cities of the first class is fixed at $40; second class, $30; third class, $25; and fourth class, $10. The dairy and food commissioner is given full authority over the sanitation of the plant.

Each storage plant licensed shall submit a monthly report to the commissioner, setting forth in itemized particulars the quantities and kinds of articles of food in storage. All articles of food in the cold storage warehouses must be plainly marked and tagged as to the date they are received for storage. It is made unlawful for any person, except the ultimate consumer, to remove this tag.

When products are not sold in bulk, but in boxes or in smaller quantities, must be able and willing to furnish to all purchasers the information regarding the length of time such products have been in storage.

The dairy and food commissioner may upon application during the twelve months, extend the period of storage to twelve months for any particular article of food, provided the same is found upon examination to be in proper condition for further cold storage, says the law. Two extensions of sixty days each may be granted, but no more. The products offered for sale must be plainly marked so there can be no deception.

Cold Storage Goods. The bill provides heavy penalties for violations. The highest fine is $1,000 or six months in jail. The bill is intended to curb the tendency to hold articles in storage.

UP-STATE REDSKINS
ARE DOING THEIR BIT

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Ashtab, Wis., June 21.—Chippewa Indians of the Lake Superior country are "doing their bit."

There are more than 1,500 Indians in this section of draft age registered out of a total population of 10,142. Scores enlisted in various branches of service before the registration.

Old and young have subscribed to the Liberty Loan. More than a million and a half of dollars belonging to the Bad River Indians is deposited in banks in this vicinity and large sums of this has been diverted to Liberty bonds. The Odanah Indians possess more than a million dollars and this, too, has been delved into for bonds.

PLAN FRESH AIR CAMP
FOR CHILDREN AT NEENAH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Neenah, Wis., June 21.—A fresh air camp is to be established near this city for four hundred children irregularly inclined. The camp will be in charge of the local school nurses. The city together with popular subscriptions will support the camp.

If you want anything and want it when you want it, try a want ad.

ONCE QUAKER CAMP
NOW ONE TO TRAIN
MEN FOR FIGHTING

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Battle Creek, Mich., June 21.—If Quakers were to rise from their graves in Battle Creek cemeteries they would hold up their hands in horror. For they would find their former settlement grounds being converted into a place to train soldiers.

When the war department selected Battle Creek as an army cantonment site, business men selected as the best place for the camp about 1,800 acres just outside of the city limits. This place was to have been made a Utopia for Quakers.

Already work on the camp is progressing. There will be some 30,000 buildings to house three hundred thousand men and twelve thousand animals. The men will be representatives of America's first conscripted army. They will swarm into the camp by Sept. 1, probably sooner.

It is authoritatively said that the payroll for the cantonment will be approximately $1,000,000 a month. These figures convey the idea of the immensity of the project.

Separate barracks are planned for each company with separate mess halls, kitchens and officers' quarters attached.

BULGARIA FEARS
GREECE AS WARFUL

Geneva, June 19, via Paris. fol Lugano, June 20.—The semi-official Balkan news agency says King Ferdinand of Bulgaria has been deeply pressed by the abdication of King Constantine, and considers it certain former Premier Venizelos will take office at the head of the government and Greece will enter into war against Bulgaria. King Ferdinand therefore intends to go shortly to German headquarters to demand assistance. The Cretan has been ordered in Sofia by Constantine's abdication.

TRENCH TALES.

A Canadian told the story of a Hun retirement and a trap they left for the incautious.

"We had moved forward a good bit after the first fortnight of this new advance and were holding an old Fritz trench as our first line," he said. One night I saw a lighted candle like big flares going up, some way behind the German line. When my officer came along I reported this to him. I guess they're clearing out, he said. I'll tell the colonel. Next morning three platoons were sent forward to investigate and, as there was no resistance, the whole of that part of the line moved forward. It was a bit of a surprise and everybody was more or less muddled for the time. I went across and as I got there, I noticed in the German front line, one of the duckboards cut in two. A man went up and put his foot on it and immediately about five yards of the trench went up with a huge bang, wounding several. After that we found a few more of the same sort in the communication trenches.

The officer made us explode them with heavy stones. We found there were just two bombs under each of them."

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Mary Anderson's father was not partial to moving pictures and was quite opposed to her going on the screen. But he was broadminded enough to let her try her hand at this work, and the very first acting she did, in support of Johnny Bunny, was so successful that her father permitted her to sign a contract with Vitagraph, where she has been ever since.

Excelling as an exponent of Del-sartian Greek dances, an expert horsewoman and swimmer, Mary's stardom is so much a result of histrionic experience as of native ability. Among the plays in which she has appeared are "My Official Wife," "The Magnificent Meddler" and "God's Country and the Woman."

Miss Anderson is a typical American. She was born and educated in New York.

Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charlie Chaplin, one hears, are to be starred in one picture, if a suitable story can be found.

One suggestion is that Charlie hit Mary in the face with a pie and have her rescued by hero Fairbanks.

State Crop Forecast
Promises Big Increase
U. S. Aggie Expert Says

(By W. F. Callender, co-operative crop reporter U. S. Department of Agriculture and Wisconsin Department of Agriculture.)

A well organized and effective campaign by the various agricultural agencies in the state has been carried on at the request of the State Council for Defense. This has resulted in increased acreage of all spring sown crops in Wisconsin; winter wheat was increased 10 per cent last fall. Its condition is now about up to the ten year average and much more last year. The estimated production is 1,900,000 bushels, compared to 1,500,000 last year.

The acreage of spring wheat has been increased fully 53 per cent over last year, making a total increase of 35,000 acres. In many counties the acreage has been more than doubled. Thousands of acres of old pasture land and old meadow have been plowed up and utilized as crops, and the newer sections of the state where farmers have been every effort to bring all of the new land they possibly can under cultivation, scarcity of labor being the chief limiting factor. Much of the new land has been put into spring wheat and more to potatoes.

The acreage of oats has been increased approximately 1 per cent. The condition of the crop is 90 per cent normal compared with 93 per cent on June 1 last year. From this figure, a total production of 76,100,000 bushels as compared to the final estimate of 74,000,000 bushels last year.

Barley acreage has been increased approximately 3 per cent. Its condition to date is 89 per cent as compared to 94 per cent of normal last year. A total yield is estimated of 12,300,000 bushels, compared with 18,300,000 bushels last year.

On some of the heavier clay soils in eastern Wisconsin the stand of oats and barley is thin, due to the hard crust formed by the heavy rains which fell shortly after planting.

The condition of winter rye is 92 per cent normal, as compared with 79 per cent a year ago. An increase in acreage of approximately 10 per cent has taken place, largely sown from pedigreed seed, which will materially affect the increase. The acreage will be approximately 405,000 acres and a prospective yield of 7,200,000 bushels, as compared to 6,000,000 last year.

Our estimates for corn and potatoes will not be completed until next month. It is certain that the acreage of corn has been very materially increased in some places on the heavier soils of the central portion of the state. Replanting has been necessary. With favorable weather from now on Wisconsin should produce the largest corn crop ever grown in the state.

The condition of the hay crop, 84 per cent, is a trifle low, due largely to the poor condition of the second year meadows, especially in the northern half of the state, where practically no rain fell during May. New seedings are fully up to the average, especially in Walworth, Rock, Green, Racine, Kenosha and Milwaukee and portions of other counties where serious damage from winter killing occurred.

In the central and central western counties the clover crop is one of the best in years.

The acreage of sugar beets has been materially increased and the sugar factory at Janesville will be reopened. Most of the seed sown last year, and the condition of the crop at this time, 92 per cent, is above average.

Field beans are just being planted and judging from the heavy demand for seed the usual acreage should be greatly increased.

Apples apparently were not injured to any extent by the heavy frost of May 23. Fortunately, but few trees were in bloom when the frost occurred. Cherries are just coming into blossom in Door county, while in Bayfield county the reports indicated the trees would be in blossom soon. Strawberries have not suffered any serious injury from frost except in scattered localities.

Pastures have been very backward until the last ten days of May and early June, but at present they are well up to the normal, and dairy cattle are doing well all over the state.

The first, second and fourth weeks of May were cool throughout the state, average from five to nine degrees below normal. The third week was normal or slightly above. Little rain fell until after the nineteenth, after which copious rains fell in southern Wisconsin, but very little in northern Wisconsin where almost drought conditions prevail. On the whole, the crop situation in the state is better this time of the year than it has been for several years. If our weather continues throughout the season Wisconsin will no doubt produce the largest crop of all products in her history.

Your letter of June 18 asking my opinion of the "THE CALL OF HER PEOPLE" at hand, and in reply wish to say that it gives me great pleasure to recommend the above picture. It is not my custom to show a picture more than three or four days, but after screening "THE CALL OF HER PEOPLE," I immediately decided to show it for the entire week, and I am pleased to advise that we did a capacity business during the entire engagement. The acting of Miss Barrymore is superb, photoplay and direction is excellent.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of sixteen. I graduated from the eighth grade last June. I am a very good student and had my choice between work and school, and I chose work. I now work in a factory and my mind seems to be getting more corrupt every day, because all here are dirty jokes and swearing. What would you advise me to do?

(2) I am considered a very pretty and nice dresser, but it seems that I cannot get a boy to like me. I think all that ails me is that I am too fickle minded, do you?

(3) What is good to make the hands nice and white?

(4) I have a green coat and got some cream on it. Would you give me a remedy to take the spots off? DOTTIE DIMPLES.

(1) Get away from factory work. The best thing you can do will be to take a business course in a commercial school. Tell your parents how you feel about the influence you think factory work has on your character, and ask for the education now that they are willing to give you before they will not help you in that way, take a night course.

(2) Not necessarily. Probably you are just particular.

(3) Take a lotion of two ounces of bay rum, one ounce of glycerine, twenty drops of carbolic acid and enough perfume to counteract the odor of the acid. Rub into the hands, are moist from washing.

(4) Use some clearer recommended by your druggist.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of sixteen, but will soon be seventeen. There is a boy I know very well. His mother and father often visit mine. He says he loves me and I love him. About eight months ago he moved out of town. He comes to see me now every two weeks. That is as often as he can get here. When he comes he always kisses me and when he leaves he kisses me too. He does not go with other girls and I do not go with other boys. I hate all boys except this one.

Do you think I do wrong by letting this boy kiss me when he comes? I don't think I do, because I am always so glad to see him, and he is always so glad to see me that we have to kiss each other. I know some day he and I will marry. Please advise me if I do right. DOLLY.

You are far too young to have a "lover." Do you think you make a mistake in letting the boy kiss you, no matter how glad you are to see him. The chances are that you will not marry each other, because you are so young. In a few years you will have changed—or else his will. Since he can only be with you once in two weeks he will have opportunities to become acquainted with other girls and may drift away from you. I wouldn't kiss him if I were you. He will like you even more if you don't, and will probably consider you a better little woman because you will not grant the privilege.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl fourteen years old. Would you advise me to take a commercial course at high school for two years or to take a commercial course at business college for three months?

BROWN EYES.

Go to high school just as long as you can and then take a course at a business college. You are too young to work intelligently at commercial work now. After a year or two of high school work you will grasp shorthand far more easily than you could now. It is better to get a high school education, getting as much English work as possible, and do not attempt a commercial course yet.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a boy seventeen years old and I am going to take a girl my own age to a show. Who should go down the aisle first?

(2) Should I take her some place to get something to eat afterwards?

TOMMY.

(1) The girl should go down the aisle first.

(2) It is not necessary to take her anywhere afterwards, but if you wish, an ice cream parlor would be nice.

HEALTH TALKS

Muscle Training to Restore Function

Modern treatment of infantile paralysis has thoroughly established the restoration of weakened muscles. Nine times out of ten the affected group or groups of muscles, in a case of poliomyelitis, will be merely weakened, perhaps extremely weakened, but they are still in the tenth case is the paralysis total.

Every muscle is connected with more than one nerve center, and every nerve center controls more than one muscle. If the affected group of muscles is only partially paralyzed, that is, only weakened, that shows that there is still some nerve center controlling the weakened muscles, and the purpose of muscle training is to improve or strengthen the influence of these unimpaired nerve centers. The patient, intelligent and cooperative, may be sent from the brain to the weakened muscle through a new or little used route which the impulse finds for itself after constant repetition of muscle contraction of the weakened muscle.

The patient is told to use a certain muscle, and perhaps gently aided in the effort to use the muscle. This is repeated many times, patiently every few seconds, but never kept up long enough to fatigue the patient.

A very important requisite for successful muscle training is accurate diagnosis of precisely which muscles may be weakened or paralyzed, and of course this demands a physician's knowledge.

With an expert to manage the treatment, it is never too late to mend weakened or partially paralyzed muscles by the aid of muscle training. This applies not alone to the after-treatment of infantile paralysis, but also to paralytic or paretic (weakened) muscles from various other causes. In one instance an improvement of 25% in a muscle was secured after six weeks of skillful muscle training, thirty-six years after the primary attack of paralysis.

The patient's understanding, when possible, together with confidence in ultimate gain and encouragement from all concerned, should be brought to bear upon the treatment. The capacity of human nerve tissue to recover is scarcely realized, even by the rank and file of the medical profession. The delicately co-ordinated and refined movements of the fingers of a pianist, or of the hand of a violinist are the result of skillful muscle training.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Warming Up the Seapipes
I should like to know whether it is a healthful practice drinking about two cups of hot water every morning on rising. May peroxide be used to wash the teeth occasionally without harm? Is skipping a meal a bad practice? Some people say one should always eat regularly whether hungry or not. C. M. E.

ANSWER.—There is no harm in taking hot water or cold water mornings, and some people find that it acts as a mild laxative. Peroxide is harmless for brushing the teeth, but it is unless you are hungry; always skip a meal if you have no appetite for it. Thousands of intelligent so-called human beings eat themselves into early graves, but rarely indeed does anybody voluntarily starve to death.

Must Have Been Tough Soap
In your department a few weeks ago you suggested the use of plain soap as a dentifrice. I recall the case of a friend who lost most of the enamel from his teeth by using soap to brush them. How often can soap be safely applied on the toothbrush? (A. J. W.)

ANSWER.—Your friend must have used a tough brand of soap. About once a day in my opinion is often enough for any one with a normal mouth to brush the teeth. Soap good enough for the face and hands is good enough for the teeth.

Mad Dog.
Please give some prominent symptoms of rabies in a dog. How many days before the animal dies? Would it be dangerous if a rabid animal merely licked a child's hand? (Mrs. H. P. C.)

ANSWER.—The dog becomes peevish and bites away in a dark corner. After a few days the dog grows weak and becomes paralyzed, so that they drag if the dog moves about. There would scarcely be danger unless the dog bites the child. In a doubtful case, confine the dog and have a vet. observe him for two weeks. If within that time the veterinarian finds no indication of rabies there is nothing to fear.

SIDE TALKS

RUTH CAMERON

A MAN'S PRIVILEGE.

I heard several men taunting another man the other day because he had taken a new stand on some national question.

"Don't talk that way," said one of the men, "the way you used to talk," they said.

"That's all right," said he, "I've changed my mind."

"Thought that was a woman's privilege," said the other.

"It's a woman's privilege to change her mind without any logical reason," said he, "and a man's to change it because he has seen good reason."

Today's Aid To Beauty

Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us and is probably the most easily damaged by bad or careless treatment. If we are very careful in hair washing, we are virtually no hair troubles. One of the things for the weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair, that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox (which you can get at any druggists) in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemically dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling lotion. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a stiffness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a canthrox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.

True Consistency
It is unlikely it is not impossible that one's first convictions on all subjects should be perfectly right. And so it is unlikely if we always stand staunchly by his original opinions and makes a point of never changing his mind, should be right. True consistency does not mean keeping true to opinions put to principles. If new facts prove your opinions to have been wrong, true consistency will oblige you to change them.

Didn't Just Like The Sound Of His Voice
I have read of some great man, I think it was John Fiske, the tribute that "he always said a thing because he thought it was true, never because he was afraid of thinking it was true because he had said it."

That is the error into which it is so easy to fall, to say a thing, like the sound of it, please your allegiance to it, and so on saying it, whether right or wrong, the rest of your life.

A man's chances of mind, if they are the right kind of changes, are the marks that indicate his growth and progress just as the circles indicate the growth of a tree.

On what subjects have you changed your mind in the last few years?

MACARONI RECIPES

Macaroni is still selling at comparatively low price in the list of soaring food staples. Good macaroni recipes are worth getting. Here are a few that have been tested and found excellent. Try them:

Macaroni Croquettes.
Carefully press macaroni and cheese into balls, dip one egg beaten up with water, roll in cracker or bread crumbs and fry in hot lard or mold into cakes and bake in oven in buttered pan.

Steamed Macaroni.
Parboil half a pound of macaroni till tender, strain off the water. Take the yolks of five eggs, the whites of two, half a pint of cream, half a cup of butter, salt and pepper. Season with salt and pepper, heat over the fire. Mix in the macaroni, put in a buttered dish and steam one hour.

Indian Macaroni.
Boil half a pound of macaroni in a pint of milk until it becomes tender; add sugar to taste and a teaspoonful of prepared coconut. When the macaroni is done, add a slightly poured over a glass dish and garnish with nuts and raisins seeded. Cover the top sprinkle a few finely chopped nuts.

Macaroni Patties.
Break macaroni into short pieces; cook in salt water until tender. Make a cream dressing of two tablespoons of butter, one of flour and one cup of cream. Cook butter and flour together, when smooth add cream and salt to taste. Put into little patty pans a layer of macaroni, alternating with the cream. Bake a nice brown.

Spaghetti.
Boil a quarter of a pound of spaghetti, drain and blanch. Add a cupful of scalded milk, a little salt and two tablespoons of butter. Pour over the spaghetti. Heat and serve. Set in oven until cold before adding the milk of three eggs; beaten light, and two tablespoons of blanched almonds. Sprinkle with white sugar. Bake covered in a pudding dish for half an hour, uncover and brown. Serve warm with cream.

Macaroni With Apples.
Put half a package of cooked macaroni in a baking dish, pour over a little cream and place pieces of butter over top. Now set in oven until cream and butter are absorbed. Fry apples and place over top. Serve with preferred sauce.

Egg Noodles With Brown Sauce.
Put two cups of cooked egg noodles in a frying pan with a cup and a half of rich brown sauce, two tablespoons of vinegar and one of capers. Beat thoroughly and serve.

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A beautiful and durable bedspread which would be very expensive to buy can be evolved from crochet work and a sufficient length of linen sheeting. When the crochet is finished, sew each piece in position on to the sheet and then cut away the linen beneath the crochet, neatly finishing off the edges. Four large corner pieces will be required, and a band of insertion, about 1 1/2 inches wide, edging to go all round. A space of eight inches should be left between the corner pieces and the insertion, as at pictured all the possible things in the insertion and the edges.

To clean mirrors, keep a piece of sponge, a cloth, and a silk handkerchief all entirely free from dirt, as the least grit will scratch the surface of the glass. First sponge the glass well with a little spirits of wine, so as to clean off all spots, then wash over it with powder blue tied in muslin; rub it off lightly and quickly with the cloth, and finish by rubbing it with the silk handkerchief. Be careful not to rub the edges of the frame.

RYE CAKES WITH HONEY.
Two cupfuls sour milk, two cupfuls rye flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, three-quarters teaspoonful soda, two eggs, one-half cupful strained honey.

Dissolve the soda in the sour milk, add rye flour and salt, thus forming a thin batter; beat well and add the eggs well beaten. Add honey and bake on a well greased hot griddle. Serve with butter and more honey if not desired so sweet, less honey may be used in the batter.

A MATCH-SCRATCH.
Make a match-scratch for the bath room by removing the glass from a small picture frame and framing a piece of sandpaper. A screw-eye in the top of the frame will allow it to hang flat against the wall.

TODAY'S WAR RECIPE

From Britain's official win-the-war cook book.
Scalloped Potatoes.—One pint of boiled potatoes, two tablespoonsfuls margarine, one teaspoonful grated Parmesan cheese, pepper, salt, and a dash of cayenne, milk as required, breadcrumbs. Mash the potatoes, snips to a puree, and mix in the fat, seasoning, and cheese. Add sufficient milk to make the mixture of creamy consistency. Ency. Pour this into greased scalloped shells or small saucers, sprinkling a few crumbs over each, and bake for one or ten minutes. Any cold cooked vegetables, such as potatoes, carrots or turnips, may be scalloped in the same way.

It's far more important now to save bread than money.

THE TIRED IDLE.

To those who are employed and busy time flies with great rapidity. Life is tedious only to the idle. Nothing is more monotonous than the ticking of a clock to him who has nothing to do but listen to it.—Anon.

The Business of Living

Eleanor Falls to Find a Clue Pointing to Her Husband's Whereabouts.

When the little clock on the mantel struck ten Eleanor was still anxiously watching for the arrival of her husband. Thoroughly frightened and convinced that something desperate must be done, she called up police headquarters and requested that a thorough search of all the hospitals be made, to learn if any one had been taken in whose identity was not known. That seemed the only reasonable explanation; he must have started home and been taken sick that he could not give his name and address to any one seeking to aid him. The officer at the police station had instructed her to be sure and inform the officer as soon as her husband returned. It was evident that there was some mystery about the case.

officer thought there was little cause to worry so early in the evening as 10 o'clock.

"Little they know Douglas," moaned Eleanor, dropping her face on her arm and seeking relief in a few bitter tears. "I am afraid they will not use every effort to find him if they are expecting me to call them up every minute, and tell them that he is here." She sat down near the phone, for that was her only means of reaching help. Gradually the lights along the quiet street went out and footsteps of pedestrians were heard at rarer intervals. Eleanor sat with her face buried in her hands as still as a statue. Listening for the expected ring of the telephone bell. Her mind was actively at work and her imagination spared her nothing in the way of suffering, as at pictured all the possible things that might have happened to her husband.

"If he had dropped dead," she thought with a contrition heart, "would it there was anything about him to identify him." The thought was too horrible to bear sitting quietly and she rose and went to the window. A few inquisitive stars showed in a cloudy sky and the bright street lamp across the road made the utter loneliness of her situation more apparent than ever, for there was not a soul stirring. She went back to her lonely vigil by the telephone. The wind was rising and it sighed like a creature that searches and searches and cannot find. Against the window the creper came over with groping fingers. The clock struck twelve.

A sharp ring of the telephone made her start from her gloomy reverie. She caught up the receiver and managed to articulate "Hello."

"We have called up every hospital in the city and there is not a patient in one of them who was not put in by friends and name and address given," came over the wire.

"Will you call up the morgue, also?" Eleanor's voice sounded far away, as if some one else were speaking. A dry sob escaped her, she had so good her husband would be found in some hospital. Another half hour of the weary vigil passed when she again heard the sharp ring that sounded so appealingly loud in the silent night. They had not been able to discover any clue. No unclaimed bodies were in the morgue.

"Continue the search," Use every means at your disposal," pleaded the desperate woman, and she again hung up the receiver.

A shiver ran up through her though the night was warm. She threw herself on the couch and drew a steamer rug over her.

"What can I do?" she moaned. "Bertram would be such a help to me, if he were only here. There is no one to whom I can go. I have friends enough, but what can they do. I can not leave the baby to go and search for him, and where would I go if I could? I am as ignorant as a child in such matters and know as little what to do."

Long she lay there staring wide-eyed into the night, but finally tired nature sent her off into temporary oblivion. She was roused from her troubled sleep by the crying of the baby. At first she did not know where she was or what had happened, but the awful burden of her trouble rushed back upon her as she ran up the stairs to the crying child.

The Real Adventure

A NOVEL

By Henry Kitchell Webster

CHAPTER V.

The Princess Cinderella.

When the society editor of "America's foremost newspaper," as in its trade-mark it proclaims itself to be, announced that the Rodney Aldriches had taken the Allison McGraes' house, furnished, for a year, beginning in October, she spoke of it as an ideal arrangement. As everybody knew, it was an ideal house for a young married couple, and it was equally evident that the Rodney Aldriches were an ideal couple for it.

In the sense that it left nothing to further realization, it was an ideal house; an ideal house in the Chicago sense, built over into something very much older still—Tudor, perhaps—Jacobean, anyway. In the supplementary matters of furniture, hangings, rugs and pictures, the establishment presented the last politely spoken word in things as they ought to be. If you happened to like that sort of thing, it was precisely the sort of thing you'd like.

The same sort of neat, fully acquired perfection characterized the McGraes' domestic arrangements. Every other year they went off around the world in one direction or another, and rented their house, furnished, for exactly enough to pay all their expenses. On the alternate years they came back and spent two years' income living in their house.

Florence McGrae was an old friend of Rodney's and it was her notion that it would be just the thing he'd want. Rodney knew for himself what the house was—complete down to the corner-cups. And six thousand dollars a year was simply dirt cheap.

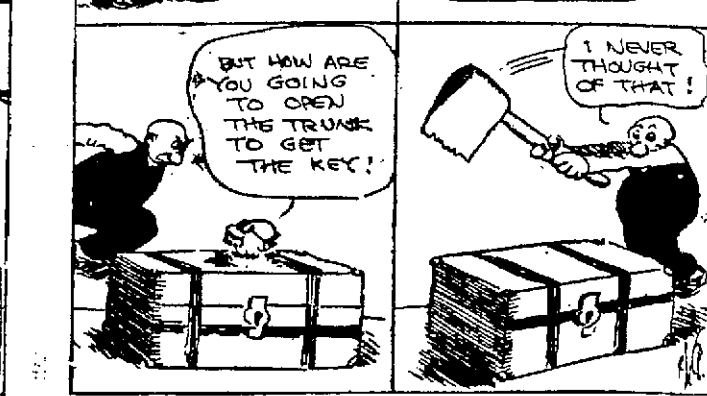

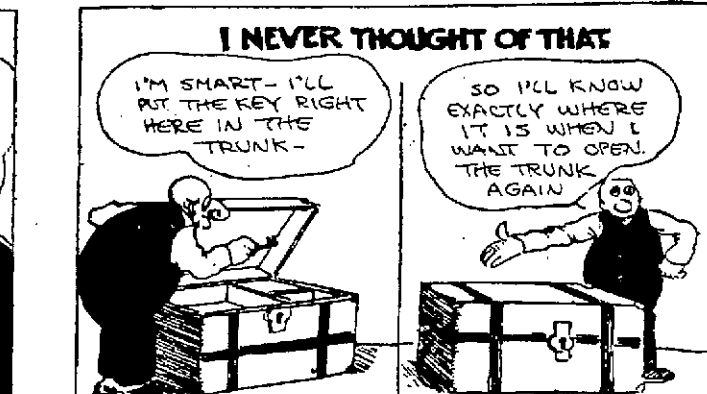

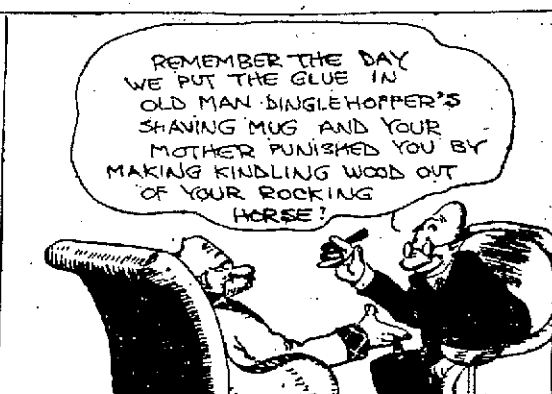

To clinch the thing, Florence went around and saw Frederica about it. And Frederica, dashed off to the next meeting of the Thursday club (all this happened in June, just before the wedding) and talked the matter over with Violet Williamson on the way home, afterward.

"John said once," observed Violet, "that if we had to live in that house, he'd either go out and buy a plush Morris-chair from feather-your-nest Sattman's, and a golden-rod side-board, or else run amuck."

Frederica grinned, but was sure it wouldn't affect Rodney that way. As for Rose, she thought Rose would like it—for a while, anyway. But this wasn't the point. "I'm so foolish about old Rodney, that I can't be sure I haven't—well, caught being mad about Rose from him. It all depends on you see, on whether Rose is going to be a bit this winter or not. If she doesn't—go (and it all depends on you, Rodney won't be much help), why, having a house like that might be pretty good. So, if you're a true friend, you'll tell me what you think."

"What I really think," said Violet, "of course I suppose I'd say this anyway, but I do honestly mean it—is that she'll be what John calls a 'snob'—she's so perfectly simple. She's never—don't you know—being anything. One just is. And she thinks we're all so wonderful that she'll make everybody feel warm and nice inside, and they'll be sure to like her."

"She's got a real eye for clothes, too," said Frederica. "We've been shopping. Well, then, I'm going to tell Rodney to go ahead and take the house."

Rose was consulted about it, of course, though consulted is perhaps not the right word to use. She was taken to see it, anyway, and asked if she liked it—a question in the nature of the superfluities. One might as well have asked Cinderella if she liked the fairy godmother had provided her with for the prince's ball.

It didn't occur to her to ask how much the rent would be, nor would the fact have had any value for her as an illuminant, because she would have had no idea whether six thousand dollars was a half or a hundredth of her future husband's income.

The new house was just a part, as so many of the other things that had happened to her since that night when Rodney had sent her flowers and taken her to the theater and two restaurants in Martin's biggest limousine had been parts, of a breath-arresting fairy story.

The conclusion Frederica and Violet had come to about her chance for social success, was amply justified by the event, and it is probable that Violet had put her finger upon the main-spring of it. So it fell out that what with the Junior league, the women's auxiliary boards of one or two of the more respectable charities, the Thursday club and the Whiffles (this was the smallest and smartest organization of the lot), fifteen or twenty young women supposed to combine and reconcile social and intellectual brilliancy on even terms. What with all this, her days were quite as full as the evenings were, when she and Rodney dined and went to the opera and sent. "It's too heavenly! I've got a whole day just to enjoy being myself," she roared for his hand, and, getting it, stroked her cheek with it—"being my new self. Portia used to think I faked pretty well. But I never was—don't you know?—right. So, you see, it's a real adventure just to say—well, that I want the car at a quarter to eleven and to tell Otto exactly where I want him to drive me to. I always feel as if I ought to say that if he'll just stop the car at the corner of Diversey street, I can walk."

He laughed out at that and asked her how long she thought this blissful state of things would last.

"Forever," she said.

But presently she looked at him rather thoughtfully. "Of course it's none of it new to you," she said. "—not the silly little things, nor the things we do together—oh, the dinners and the dances, and the operas. Do you sort of—wish I'd get tired of it? Is it a dreadful bore to you?"

"So long as it doesn't bore you," he said; "so long as you go on—shining the way you do over it, and I am where I can see you shine"—he took hold of both her hands, "so long as it's like that, you wonder," he said, "well, the dinners and the operas and all that may be piffle, but I shall be blind to the fact."

She kissed both his hands and told him contentedly that he was a darling. But, after a moment's silence, a little frown puckered her eyebrows and she asked him what he was so solemn about.

Well, he had told her the truth. But precisely as he said it, he felt that he was not the same man he had been six months ago. Not the man who had tramped impatiently back and forth across Frederica's drawing-room, expounding his ideals of space and leisure. Not the man who despised the clutter of expensive junk. That man would have decided the possibility that he could ever say this thing that he, still Rodney Aldrich, had just said to Rose—and meant. And the terrifying thing was that he hadn't resisted the change—hadn't wanted to resist—didn't want to now, as he sat there looking at the slumberous glory of her eyes.

So, when she asked him what he was looking so solemn about, he said with more truth than he pretended to himself, that it was enough to make anybody solemn to look at her.

CHAPTER VI.

The First Question and Its Answer. Rose's instinctive attitude toward the group of young to middle-aged married people into which her own marriage had introduced her was founded on the assumption that, allowing for occasional exceptions, the husbands and wives felt toward each other as she and Rodney did—were held together by the same irresistible, unanalyzable attraction.

Oh, there were bumps and bruises, of course! She had seen Rodney drop off now and again into a scowling abstraction, during which it was so evident he didn't want to talk to her, or even be reminded that she was about, that she had gone away flushed and wondering, and needing an effort to hold back the tears.

These weren't frequent occurrences, though, and did not weaken her idea that, barring tragic and disastrous types—unfaithful husbands, cold, mercenary wives—which had to be admitted as existing—marriage was a state whose happy satisfactoriness could, more or less, be taken for granted.

It was something that Simone Greville said which gave rise to her first misgiving that marriage was not, perhaps—even between people who loved each other—quite as simple as it seemed. No one has studied our leisure and cultivated classes with more candor and penetration than this great Franco-Austrian actress. She had ample opportunities for observation, because, while she played to houses that couldn't be dressed to look more than a third full, she was enormously in demand for luncheons, teas, dinners, suppers, Christmas bazaars, charity dances, and so on.

Rose had met her a number of times before the incident referred to happened, but had always surveyed the loveliness from afar.

Dinner Stories

Mark Twain and Chauncey M. Depew once went abroad on the same ship. When the ship was a few days out they were both invited to a dinner. Speechmaking time came. Mark Twain had the first chance. He spoke twenty minutes and made a great hit. Then it was Mr. Depew's turn.

"Mr. Toastmaster and Ladies and Gentlemen," said the famous raconteur as he arose, "before this dinner Mark Twain and myself made an agreement to exchange speeches. He has just delivered my speech, and I thank you for the pleasant manner in which you received it. I regret to say that I lost the notes of his speech and cannot remember anything he was to say."

Then he sat down. There was much laughter. Next day an Englishman who had been in the party came across Mark Twain in the smoking room. "Mr. Clemens," he said, "I consider you were much imposed upon last night. I have always heard that Mr. Depew is a clever man, but really that speech of his you made last night struck me as being the most infernal rot."

"I don't seem to be able to say the right thing to women," a bashful young man confided to us the other day, "and that's why I don't shine in society. Tell me, you an instance of it. Not long ago I met a woman I hadn't seen for years, and I could see that she was trying to keep young. So I thought I'd say a graceful thing to her."

"Well, I said: 'I never mean what I say. As a matter of fact, you don't carry your age well,' said I."

"Well, the moment I said it I could see that I was in the wrong. She was looking chilly and getting red, so I said:

"Don't mind my little jokes—I never mean what I say. As a matter of fact, you don't carry your age well," said I."

a bit well." "And then she killed me with a haughty look and sailed away without saying good-bye. Seems to me I should have put it rather differently, don't you think?"

"Begin at the bottom and work up," counseled the eminent divine as he was addressing a congregation of young men. "That is the only way. There is no exception." "I cannot begin at the bottom, sir," said a young man whose hands bore the marks of honest toil. "And why not?" demanded the preacher. "I am a well digger," he replied respectfully.

CLAIM JILTED GUARDSMAN DRANK CARBOLIC ACID

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS] Fond du Lac, Wis., June 21.—William Neider, 22, a member of Company K, W. N. G. Beaver Dam, is alleged to have attempted suicide by drinking carbolic acid because his sweetheart is said to have received attentions from another man. The attempt was made at the home of his sister, Mrs. Clara Kleinmeyer, near Waupun. He did not drink enough, however, to have any serious effects. The girl with whom Neider is said to have been in love is employed in a Waupun bakery.

Port of Archangel. The name of Archangel is properly Archangelsk. The port was founded in 1514. It was named after a monastery dedicated to the Archangel Michael. For about 120 years it was the only port of Russia.

It does beat all how we are doing away with old customs. You seldom see a man beat a carpet any more in this day of rugs and matings.—Florida Times-Union.

Portia had been quite right in saying that she never had to do anything; the rallying of all her forces under the spur of necessity was an experience she had never undergone. And it was also true that her mother, and for that matter, Portia herself, had spoiled her a lot—had run about doing little things for her, come in and shut down her windows in the morning, and opened the register, and, on any sort of excuse, on a Saturday morning, for example, had brought her breakfast on a tray.

But these things had been favors, not services—never to be asked for, of course, and always to be accepted a little apologetically. She had never before known what it was really to be served.

"I haven't," Rose told Rodney one morning, "a single, blessed moral thing to do all day." Some fixture scheduled for that morning had been moved, she went on to explain, and Eleanor Randolph was feeling soedy and had called off a little luncheon and matinee party.

"Oh, that's too bad," he said with concern. "Can't you manage something . . . ?"

"Too bad!" said Rose in lively disbelief.

MORRIS MILLER

Joe Duran, infielder of the Holbrook, college baseball team, coached by Jesse Burkett, is likely to be the cause of some controversy. Connie Mack was supposed to have an agreement with him that if he took up professional baseball he would join the Athletics, but Burkett, according to report, has induced him to pitch himself to the Red Sox. Now both clubs are claiming him. Duran has temporarily solved the issue by declining to postpone his debut as a professional, but sooner or later the storm will break over his head.

Football hangs in the balance at Yale, Harvard and Princeton, and although most of the other colleges and universities are making plans to put teams on the gridiron early in the fall, subject to the conclusions reached at the conference of the National Collegiate Athletic association in Washington in August, no one is in authority at Cambridge, New Haven or Princeton will say that there is anything more than a bare possibility that the game will be played by them next autumn.

Alva Williams and Jack Bentley are doing a lot of exertion with the stick for Baltimore, Bentley, who failed as a pitcher with Washington, has been used in the outfield by Jack Durr on account of his hitting. In a recent game he had four safe blows, including a couple of three-baggers.

Texas league fans were interested in reports from St. Joseph that the fans there had staged a mob scene in the Empire Hotel. When the bandits, the indicator in the Texas league earlier in the season he had a pretty time of it, but showed his sympathy. One day he got a letter telling him that if he showed up in the park at Galveston he would not have it alive, but he was on hand just the same and finished out the series without turning a hair—or losing one.

Manager Clark Griffith, having failed to convince Ban Johnson of the illegality of the pitching of Eddie Cicotte, now complains his team is handicapped by the fact that the bulls used are inclined to become lopsided. Soon he will say the batting slump of his players is due to the colors in the thread used in stitching the covers.

The Rochester club finally managed to dispose of Outfielder Larus Kirby by sending him to Scranton in the New York State league. It will be the fourth uniform he has worn this year and the season is still young.

Johnny Bassler continues to clout the ball in the Coast league and hold his lead over Buddy Ryan. Bill Kenworthy has shown his liking for Coast league pitching by clubbing among the leading batters, the work of an aging temporary manager of the Angels not bothering him a bit seemingly.

In San Francisco, where they are a bit sore because Los Angeles took the recent series from the Seals, they are accusing Frank Chance of "buying" a pennant because he has purchased Fornier and Terry. The time may change if it happens that the Seals later have to acquire a few new ones themselves.

As soon as the Oakland club had purchased Ray Miller from Cleveland to play first base, Warren Adams, who was in an awful slump, perked up in his hitting and began to make a stronger bid to hold his job. They are printing stories that Adams wasn't trying as hard as he used to because it is hard to believe a player wouldn't try for his hits.

Wood said that after he had pitched seven innings against New York recently his arm "went cold" and it was a tremendous effort to work the remainder of the game.

LEGISLATURE RUNS BEHIND SCHEDULE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., June 21.—In spite of the fact that both houses of the legislature are crowding the work there now exists some doubt as to whether the duties can be concluded at the end of the week, as originally planned. At the commencement of business today the assembly had nearly fifty of its own bills and over thirty senate bills for consideration. The senate had about thirty of its own bills and upwards of twenty assembly bills included in the bills for consideration this week are the measures for building and land appropriations at the university, the big fish and game bill and the workmen's compensation measure.

So far this session 682 bills have been offered in the senate and 706 in the house. Of the senate bills 408 were passed, but of these the assembly has already non-concurred in 81 measures. Of the assembly bills 346 passed and the senate non-concurred in 47 of the assembly bills.

The number of bills introduced at this session of the legislature is somewhat smaller than in a number of years past. In 1911 there were 1,077 bills introduced into the assembly and 633 in the senate.

One of the facts of this session of the legislature is the opposition to resolutions to change the state constitution. Two resolutions and possibly three for constitutional changes will probably be finally agreed to. These include the proposal to allow a sheriff to succeed himself, home rule for cities and the plan to change the constitution so that members of the legislature may receive a larger salary for their services.

The salary change that is passing the legislature is different than previously offered. The resolution limits the salary to $1,200, but allows the legislature to fix the salary for each succeeding legislature at any sum below that amount. The mileage is reduced from ten cents to two cents to and from the capital one time.

INCREASE PLANT CAPACITY TO MAKE CANTEN TOPS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Manitowish, Wis., June 21.—To handle an order of 2,000,000 (censored) silver bushings for the tops of old-fashioned army canteens, the Wisconsin Foundry company is completing the installation of six extra furnaces in order to turn out the bushings at the rate of 16,000 a day. The contract for the canteens is held by another company.

DESTRUCTIVE TENANT MAKES LANDLORD A MILLIONAIRE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Rio de Janeiro, June 21.—Dr. Marques da Silva rented his house in a suburb of this city to a negro family. His tenants left recently without paying the rent, and adding insult to injury, stole all the electric wiring and plumbing fixtures in the house. They even tore up an underground pipe leading to the water main. The doctor sat on the veranda of the vacated house contemplating the iniquity of tenants in general when he noticed a peculiar metallic gleam in the trench where the pipe had been torn out. The gleam was caused by mercury oozing from the clay. The mercury mine will probably make the doctor a millionaire.

SOLDIER GRADUATES AWARDED DIPLOMAS AT TRAINING CAMP

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Port Sheridan, Ill., June 21.—Amid a scene of preparation for war about seventy-five soldier boys of the University of Wisconsin dressed in khaki uniforms, were given their diplomas here late this afternoon. The commencement exercises were held at the camp during the rest hour, shortly after four o'clock. The addresses were made by Prof. S. H. Goodnight, dean of men at the university, and Prof. Julius E. Olson, chairman of the committee on public functions at the university. A message from Governor Emanuel Philipp was read to the graduating soldier boys by Dean Goodnight. So far as is known the commencement which was given here this afternoon to the University of Wisconsin soldiers is not only unique in the history of the institution from which the boys are graduating, but presumably is unique in the history of Port Sheridan and in the annals of every American university. Owing to the solemnity of the occasion the speeches made by Prof. Goodnight and Prof. Olson took on a war tone and a spirit of patriotism. The message from Governor Philipp was a document intended to fire patriotism and designed to express in a degree the appreciation of the state of Wisconsin to the boys who have enlisted.

"You are waging a righteous war," declared Dean Goodnight. "You are not fighting the battle of oppression. You are seeking to force the yoke of servitude or tribute upon the necks of a weaker people, and you are not obeying the behests of a tyrannous monarch, and blindly fighting the ruthless fight of autocracy or plutocracy. You are fighting for the sublime principles that your fathers fought for."

Dean Goodnight paid a tribute to President Wilson and told the graduating students they had behind them not only the University of Wisconsin but a loyal state of Wisconsin.

"Wisconsin's hearts are right," continued Dean Goodnight. "Wisconsin is behind you and Wisconsin is proud of you."

The exercises were opened by an invocation by the military chaplain. The university hymn, "Light For All," was sung. Following the address by

CLAIRVOYANTS REAP HARVEST IN ENGLAND

London, June 21.—The old crystal ball has been brought out of storage and polished up for new revelations, and the ouija board and planchette have a coat of shellac, for the clairvoyant business is booming in London.

Soldiers, sailors and women are observed to form the bulk of the "trade." Superstition, curiosity and the seeking hope that the truth may be foretold before they go back to the trenches or the turbulent North Sea, drive hundreds of boys into the mysterious, half-darkened parlors. In Notting Hill the planchette rivals the crystal ball in popularity. The saloons are crowded and the charge is as much as the traffic will stand. Keen-eyed attendants quickly size up the customer's total net cash. Adroit questions pump the client of useful information before he is admitted to the mysterious trance parlor where incense burns in the shadow corners and heavy draperies fall about the couch of the "professor." Tommy wants to know whether he will come back; perhaps he asks whether he will receive a "big" wound. The fortune-teller is willing to oblige. He can foretell the soldier's fate in many ways—through the revealing crystal, the ouija or by reading the client's aura. He charges from fifty cents to five dollars for his information. A careworn mother asks whether her son is alive. Unwittingly she has already described the boy. "The crystal is clouding over," says the professor. "I see a movement, marching men—mud, rain, smoke. The scene changes. I see a face—it is your son's; blue eyes, straight nose, ruddy cheeks. He is whistling as he marches to the rear. Madame, the boy is safe."
